Inside Fashion Design

We are a global resource that informs, inspires, empower and connect creative thinkers, makers, and brands.

I was given the opportunity to work remotely as a Social Media Content Producer at Inside Fashion Design this summer which is originally based in Portland, Oregon. I was fortunate enough to work closely with a former NDSU alumni and Co-Founder of both IFD and Creative Capital Design.

Because every handcrafted object has a life of meaning behind it

Ten Thousand Villages is more than a store. We're a global maker-to-market movement that breaks the cycle of generational poverty and ignites social change. We're a way for you to shop with intention for ethically-sourced wares — and to share in the joy of empowering makers in ten thousand villages. As a pioneer of fair trade, we do business differently, putting people and planet first. That means you can trust that every handmade purchase and donation you make directly impact the life and community of its maker in a developing country.

Some of my responsibilities and projects included researching and finding potential designers and makers to support and include in the online marketplace. I also was responsible for a larger project to collect an abundance of resources for fresh college graduates looking to obtain a career in the fashion industry. This was anywhere between helpful pages on Instagram, LinkedIn tips and tricks, resume tips, appropriate attire and ways to gain confidence in interviews, and free online courses,
