SURP DEVELOPMENT

SURP activity planning is underway for the 2017 summer program. This year's SURP will feature mentorship as a key component of the students' participation. The INBRE team plans to pair students with faculty mentors, in their area of interest, and have the students work on a project with their mentor throughout the duration of the program. Upon completion of their research in the program, the students will then present their findings at a poster competition. This competition will take place during the last week of SURP.

In addition to this change, the INBRE team will be reaching out to TCU faculty researchers to present their research projects during SURP. The INBRE team feels it is a great opportunity to have the students learn more about research opportunities which are underway in their communities.

If you are a researcher at a tribal college, that would like to present your work to the SURP students, please contact Pearl Walker-Swaney at pearl.walker@ndsu.edu for more information.

INBRE BROCHURE

The INBRE team has developed additional materials to distribute to students, staff, and faculty at the tribal colleges and universities. One of these projects includes the creation of an INBRE brochure. The brochure provides a brief description of INBRE's activities. In addition, it lists other resources that INBRE has developed, which are available for use upon request. If you would like to learn more about the NDSU INBRE program, please let a member of the INBRE team know and we will provide you with copies of the brochure.

NEW TRAINING MODULES

Two additional modules have been created this month. At the North Dakota INBRE Symposium, the INBRE team interviewed Dr. Brent Voels from Cankdeska Cikana Community College and two students from Nueta-Hidatsa-Sahnish College. Brent's interview, which details his research projects and past experiences with mentorship, is available online for viewing. The second module features Florence Laducer-Garrett and Ashly Hall discussing what research means to them. Both of these modules can be found online through our webpage.
