I have just been made aware of the future demolition of the horticulture greenhouse at NDSU.

As a university known for its accomplishments in agriculture and horticulture, I rely on your continued research and propagation of plants for our region.

My husband and I look to the NDSU horticulture programs for research-based information in order to plant and groom our farmstead - not only for the purpose of beautification, but to create a healthier environment for future generations.

I'm sure many area residents will notice the implications of losing the greenhouse when the flower gardens around the university are bare. I ask that you reconsider demolition.

Thank you for your time,

Linda Reinhart
